Canon sure shot z155 manual

Here it is shown with the lens open and ready to shoot. Here the 37 to 155mm zoom lens is shown in the retracted "Off" position. The power zoom buttons are in the circle to the upper right. The Mode dial is in the center at the bottom. Film wind a rewind is powered as is the zoom function. In Japan it was known as the Autoboy 155 and in Europe as the Prima Super 155. Focus is automatic and film speed is set from the DX Code on the film can to anything between 25 and 3200. If film without a DX Code, such as hand rolled film, is used the camera defaults to ASA 25. There is no way to set the ISO manually. In this case you have to add your own coded label to the can. I wrote about how to do that some time ago. You can select Automatic, Action, Nighttime, Landscape and so on. The details of each are set out in the User Manual. Get news of what we're doing sent to you when we post something new.! Lens is shown retracted. So many cameras and so little time. It shows signs of use and has two small scratches and dents on the front. Canons Best Shot Dial provides seven shooting modes for pinpoint control for tackling even the most challenging situations. Modes include closeup, portrait, action, and night scene. And when you want even greater individuality, you can set and save your own shooting preferences with the personal mode. The Sure Shot Z155 incorporates a passive sevenpoint switchingtype artificial intelligence automatic focusing AiAF system, which allows the user to clearly view and sharply focus on the subject in a wide variety of conditions. The focusing and metering systems are linked to the zoom, ensuring virtually the same focal range for both wide angle and telephoto shooting. It can handle all light conditions from sunny to dark, and when shooting night scenes, the slowsync mode makes sure background illumination also gets captured. The cameras viewfinder also incorporates a dioptic adjustment knob, increasing the usability of the camera for users wearing glasses.The worlds smallest 4.2x zoom 35mm camera as of February 2002, it features a powerful 37155mm lens that makes shooting all of lifes precious moments simplethe majestic sweep of a forest at dawn or the face of a child in a school play. And Canons 3point autofocus, ultraprecise auto exposure system, builtin Light Guide Zoom Flash and 7mode Best Shot Dial give you the freedom to create. The marvel is that Canon could deliver all this performance in a camera so compact and lightweight. Note the sophisticated metallic silver design richly embossed with a spiral accent, the teal grip and the stylish shape. They make the Z155 a delight to hold and to shoot. This is a camera made for you. And you'll amaze yourself at what you can do with it. Focusing is simplicity itself. The Passive 3point AiAF autofocus system assures ultrasharp, dazzlingly clear images across the full range of the camera's powerful lens.

While at the same time, the sophisticated auto exposure metering system creates the optimal settings for your subject and light. All you do is press the button. Your pictures will tell the whole story beautifully. The auto exposure system assures perfect pictures even in difficult lighting conditions. By linking information from the 3point autofocus, auto exposure and flash, it gives you precise, interlocked exposures instantly and automatically. The Sure Shot Z155 is equipped with Passive 3point Autofocus that precisely focuses on your subject whether its centered or offcenter, to give you a sharp, flawlessly clear image. Turn, Turn, Turn for Your Best Shot Life is full of pictureperfect moments and Canons Best Shot Dial helps you make the most of them. Its seven shooting modes provide the pinpoint control to tackle even the most challenging situations effortlessly. And when you want even greater individuality, theres Personal Mode to set and save your own personal shooting preferences. It all makes picturetaking with the Sure Shot Z155 simple and intensely satisfying. Spot Spot Mode concentrates focus and exposure on the center of the frame so your subject is pictureperfect. Personal For more individualized control over focus and flash, Personal Mode lets you create and save a unique group of settings to use whenever you want them. Closeup Reveal subtle patterns and textures from as close as approx. 1.5 ft. away. This mode automatically adjusts the focal length to capture the magic of small details. Auto Most of the time Auto Mode is the setting you'll turn to. Portrait The camera automatically zooms to head and shoulders distance, at the same time artistically blurring the background to create a beautiful, stylish shot. Action Capture your budding superstars first moves. Action Mode automatically meters and focuses a moving subject. Night Scene For inspired evening shots, choose Night Scene.

It fires the RedEye Reduction Flash and slows the shutter to create bright subjects against softly glowing backgrounds. Seize the Moment The Sure Shot Z155s builtin Light Guide Zoom Flash lets you capture lifes perfect moments even when theres little natural light. This sophisticated flash has five modes including RedEye Reduction to diminish the red eye effect. To handle tough backlighting automatically, theres FillIn Flash. For more creative control, select Manual Exposure Compensation. Fillin flash The Z155 automatically calculates proper exposure and flash settings for shadowed or strongly backlit subjects so your pictures capture every detaila childs shy smile or a babys tiny fisteven when the light isnt perfect. Exposure compensation Your creativity is unlimited. The large LCD panel shows you every function at a glance. The Best Shot Dial is within close reach. The RealImage Zoom Viewfinder lets you compose your shot accurately. Say Something Personal Over time, memories can grow hazy. This model can imprint each shot with the month, day and year the picture was taken. You can also personalize your pictures with 5 unique captions, in 5 different languages. Its a simple way to show you care.To calculate the overall star rating and percentage breakdown by star, we don't use a simple average. Ive gotten a few blurry ones, that I may have moved. Unfortunately the price wasnt as good when I bought it. It has an optional remote control which I was used to on my pentax and the zoom is longer. Overall a good camera.

I took multiple pictures of shorelines and things like that while standing in the same spot, and each of the pictures that I took came out differently, but they were all taken from the same spot with the same lighting conditions and such. Also, I took all of my pictures in beautiful tropical weather and they all came out looking like it was dark and gloomy, and I was just using the automatic setting. It did terrible in low lighting situations as well. I realize that automatic cameras are not the best idea for truly amazing photos, but if you're looking for a camera that works well in different situations, this is not it. I definitely do not recommend this camera as a good automatic one. I think a disposable camera would provide you with better results. It does have some cool features on it, but the picture quality is lacking in return. I returned it and got a Minolta 160 instead and I'm still waiting to get my first roll of film back. Let's hope I have a better review for that camera when I do! I would not recommend this camera if you want zoomed photos. Even the outdoor zoomed pics were not top quality!! It has been terribly inconsistent. I've only gotten consistent photos on 1 trip; the photos of the other 3 trips have been a major disappointment. I usually only use my camera for vacation, and clear, beautiful pictures are very important to me. My photos of Hawaii and London were dark, unfocused, and overall just not good. I use the same place and same people to develop my photos. I take a digital camera along on all my trips, and my digital photos turn out amazing; the digital photos are usually taken right after my film photos, so they're subjected to the same conditions as the film. My mother has a Canon Sure Shot 115 and it takes great photos, so I thought I would give Canon a try. I had a Minolta Freedom Zoom 140, and I believe it takes better photos than this Canon, and the Minolta was doused in sea water on a cruise.

Overall, for this amount of money, I would shop around. This camera is just too inconsistent. The zoom is also very noisy. Didn't get a chance to read the reviews here first and I'm glad I didn't or I probably would not have bought it!. I quickly snapped a roll of 24-exposure film to try the camera out and see if we wanted to keep it. The pictures came out BEAUTIFULLY. I took some indoors, some out. Some with the fully automatic point-and-shoot, and experimented with the portrait mode, sports action mode, and night mode. They all came out fantastically. It's like having two cameras in one: a fully automatic no-brainer point-and-shoot as well as some features that allow you to be more creative and experimental with photography if you want to. Also a great zoom. Canon must have corrected the issues that some of the earlier reviewers posted, because I did not experience any of these problems. Because I trust Canon, I didn't think that it would be a problem. But little that I know when the day I arrive in a tropical island and loaded the film, it doesn't work and wouldn't let me take any pictures. I call Canon's technical support line and they are not being very helpful at all. They went over with me the procedures that I already know. It's the same thing as the instructions. Overall, this camera ruin my trip. I have to go and buy 5 disposable camera so I would have any pictures for this trip. Sherrill is the decadent Hastings. Impulsively bluff hautboy is the z155.
